

The Royal Statistical Society (RSS) West Medal is awarded to Danny Pfeffermann.

Danny has had a long career in social statistics, with particular methodological interests in time series, multilevel modelling, survey non-response and small area estimation. He has for many years held down multiple roles, has been President of the Israeli Statistical Society and is currently the National Statistician in Israel, Professor at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem and Professor of Social Statistics at Southampton, while continuing a role with the Bureau of Labor Statistics in the US. He continues to use his expertise to train the next generation of official statisticians, as well as pursuing his research interests which also inform his work directing a national statistical office.

The Royal Statistical Society (RSS) Barnett Award is awarded to Peter Guttorp

The Barnett Award is awarded to Peter Guttorp for his sustained and excellent contribution to the field of environmental statistics. Peter's contributions span both advanced methodological developments and their application to a range of environmental systems, including climate change, atmospheric and geophysics. His work has influenced policy across the environmental sciences and he was a member of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change that was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 2007.
