

IASC News October 2017

The 2017 IASC-ARS Conference

The 2017 IASC-ARS conference will be held at University of Auckland, New Zealand, on 10-14 December 2017. This is a joint conference of the Asian Regional Section of the International Association for Statistical Computing (IASC-ARS) and the New Zealand Statistical Association. More details can be found on our website <http://www.iascars2017.com/>.

The conference marks the retirement of Ross Ihaka, one of the two co-founders of R. The plenary speakers will be Jennifer Bryan, Ross Ihaka, Luke Tierney, and Simon Urbanek. There will be a young statisticians event and pre-conference R workshops.

Abstract submissions have closed and acceptance letters will be sent to the authors around 5 October 2017. All presenters must be registered by 8 November in order to be included in the schedule and programme booklet.

Early bird registration closes on 20 October 2017. From 21 October to 8 November 2017 the standard registration fee will apply.

Draft versions of the schedule should be made available at the conference websites in late November. Information for presenters will also be put there.

We look forward to seeing you in Auckland!
