

Membership

The ISI is the worldwide professional body that covers all topics of statistics and all sectors where statisticians work. This includes academia, government and industry.

(At the bottom of this page we have information specifically for existing members and for former members.)

ISI membership

The ISI acknowledges the diversity of its members by offering different types of membership, grouped as:

Individual memberships

You can be part of our global community.

See our current members.

» Choose this membership type.

Organizational memberships

Organizations are encouraged to assist us in furthering the cause of statistics on a national and international level.

We count many national statistical offices and regional/international organizations among our Institutional members, central banks among our Corporate members, and statistical societies among our Affiliates.

See our current members.

» Choose this membership type.

Association memberships

You can join one or more of the ISI Associations. We also encourage ISI Elected and Regular members to join their Association(s) of interest.

Existing members

As an existing ISI or Association member, you can add membership of the ISI or extra Associations, after you login to your account.

Former members

As a former member, you can have your membership reinstated. Login to your account and add the membership(s).

Pay for other members

If you would like to pay the individual membership fee for other member/s, please send an email to isimembership@cbs.nl for information on how to proceed.